I just wanted to say to whoever continued to tweet about climate change that it is very much appreciated. Having been to Badlands (and many of our national parks) it is very important to myself and those I know that we preserve the environment. Thank you!

Who would've thought it? National Park employees waging a digital guerilla war against an OCD moron who still insists climate change doesn't exist. You fine people may be our nation's last line of defense against destruction of not only our own national treasures but the natural world as a whole. Please rest assured the nation appreciates your courageous determination to protect our natural wonders. Don't be cowered. Don't be bullied. Don't be silenced. The dark cloud that hangs over America at the moment will pass and a new day will most certainly dawn. Until then, stay strong and resolute. And thanks to all of you for your peerless service.

While America remains a democracy, PLEASE do not stop speaking the TRUTH openly, publicly and loudly to the dictatorship. Please encourage ALL National Parks to do the same! We all know, science knows, that climate change is REAL and human caused. And keep it up. Don't stop, be relentless. These are NOT NORMAL times. Speak now while we still have a voice. I applaud you. You have inspired me to send the following message varied to NPs I have camped or backpacked in and are experiencing the effects of climate change and have studies - copy from Lassen - I also send one to Glacier NP about our recent backpacking trip and Olympic NP about Blue glacier which I have hiked to. Please read the following and enjoy - you have inspired me!: Dear wonderful NPS staff rangers, In 2003, my husband and I spent 3 glorious days at Lassen NP. We were transformed now and forever by such natural solitude and beauty. So far away from many population centers and worth every moment to drive there. I ask you now to be brave, use your twitter account and send an honest tweet about the climate change data you have on the pika populations. You have the scientific data. These are not alternative facts. I can say no more. I respect you all so much. I know what you love and protect. We walk through our fears and not around them. Thank you for listening to my voice. I have followed since Friday, our president's efforts for inhibit free speech and that your Park had continued to issue tweeters until yesterday. You may not know it but many of us feel his actions are illegal. The first amendment applies to all people including federal employees. Federal employees need to continue to assist the public and should not be made to represent the opinions of just the party that is in power. Limitation on free speech, limit our knowledge!! Badlands is my favorite national park. I have visited it more than 30 times, camping there more than 10 times. I love it. I have a poster of it in my office. I also voted for Donald Trump for President. I never ignored an order from President Obama. But, evidently someone there thinks they are above the law and the will of the American people expressed in this last election. Now what am I to do. The poster is in my office, but somehow it has lost its appeal to me. Look. The climate changes. We know that. It is science. But, climate change has been politicized. It does not need to be. The computer models that predict doomsday are just conjectures. They are not science. Other models could predict just the opposite. Input. Output. Get over it. Unnecessary. You have an order. You are getting a paycheck. A taxpayer funded paycheck. Obey the order. And stop the nonsense. Let me love Badlands without the drama. Thank you. I was shocked to learn that your climate change info had been taken down from your Website. Who were the dark and ignorant people who made that happen? What kind of authoritarian regime are we headed into? I believe climate change is real and everyone has a First Amendment right to talk about it, including the Rangers and keepers of Badlands National Park. Thanks to all of you who are standing up to the President and others in government who are illiterate on that subject. My family, me and my mother, brother and sister have visited the Badlands almost every year for the past 8 years. We love it! The wide expansiveness, the colours, the wildlife. And now my appreciation goes out especially to the Rangers and staff who are standing up for truth and facts against the science deniers. I hope you keep on keeping it up! Hello, I am a graphic designer and marketing specialist in the Philadelphia area. In light of recent events, I am hoping to launch a private social media campaign that will give people access to the correct information on climate change through an account without government affiliations. I am not looking for any kind of formal arrangement between us, or financial support, what I ask of you is access to give me access to the information that best supports your message so that I might be able to aid in the fight to keep this information accessible. I attempted to go through the appropriate channels on different government websites, but in a world where alternative facts are acceptable, I decided to reach out in an effort to ensure my sources are reputable. If you can point me in the right direction for meaningful statistics/reports, or even send me anything directly that would help me amplify your message, that would be wonderful. Thank you for your time.

Howdy Badlands! First of all, y'all are BADASS and I'm so thankful to you and all of our national parks. So sorry our government is lameo right now. I'm a singer songwriter and I spend much of my life traveling around this big beautiful country of ours. This summer I made a music video featuring the great outdoors. While it wasn't shot inside a national park, I hopped from park to park and gained footage along the way. I hope this brightens your day! Cheers, (b) (6) Video Link: (b) (6)

I imagine that this person's job may be at stake, and I want to offer some help to them, however I can. Please contact me if a crowd source support campaign is begun for this person. I also have a place in Portland, OR they could stay for a while. Thanks again! It has given many people, myself among them, a lot of hope and inspiration. Cheers, (b) (6)

Thank you for sharing climate facts with people. You are providing an important service! We, in Canada, are watching events in the USA unfold, and are mostly shaking our heads in confusion. Does your park have any t-shirts or other items for purchase? I'm happy to support the National Park Service from north of the border.

To National Park employees: I have been to the Badlands National Park many times and have always enjoyed the experience. The staff are usually helpful and friendly, but I have a major complaint. Please stop injecting your liberal political bias into your profession. The majority of us regular citizens are tired of the constant onslaught of the phony "science" of "global warming" or "climate change" or whatever the next term it is that is created to try and keep the public propagandized into believing false data. I can remember in the 1970's when it was constantly stated that we were entering another "ice-age" by the same crowd that is constantly shouting the current false information. The real science actually proves that the earth has gone through these warming and cooling episodes for millennia without the help of man. As a matter of fact, volcanic activity accounts for far more "carbon" in the atmosphere than we could ever hope to put there, and the earth has continued to balance itself and support life for all of that time! We are onto the false science and what the socialist liberals are trying to use it for. You work for us, so please stop the propaganda when you are on our time! Thank you,

Dear Park Service Obviously, you can not admit to engaging in civil disobedience in an attempt to warn the nation and world about climate change. It appears that being placed under a "gag" order by President Trump was not enough to destroy your commitment to the national treasures under your protection. I fear you are taking risks with your career futures-but it is in pursuit of protecting our planet and for that, I am grateful. I did not realize our civil servants would be on the front lines of fighting tyranny. Please try to keep your voice and your mission during the uncertain days ahead. (b) (6)

I want to say thank you for sending out tweets of scientific facts about climate change. Even though they were taken down, I believe the public has every right to know the facts, regardless of the President's viewpoints. You guys keep resisting, and so will I. This is not normal.

For someone who cannot easily visit the park, is the only way to make a donation that supports the park by mail? After hearing about the climate data that was shared I wanted to send a donation. I know the park then publicly stated it was posted by a former employee and it has since been removed, but that person still had guts and in their honor I would like to donate.

I applaud whoever posted the info re climate change on your Twitter account. From what I gather from the news, it would appear that federal employees no longer have the right of freedom of speech. This is just another indication...as if we needed one...that this country is in very deep trouble. I fear that Donald Trump is truly delusional and will do great harm to our country. I hope that Badland employees will continue to pursue their constitutional right of free speech.

January 24, 2017 To All Badlands Park Service Employees/TeamMembers: I want to thank you for the Tweet posted by your Park in regards to the "Factual" and "Actual" reported number posted of the state of the pollution in our environment. This is exactly the type of information that should be given to not only the American Public but to all citizens of the world!!! The only way we have a chance of changing the world's environment and to keep our national parks in existence for future generations, is by information and education!! It is my opinion that you would be derelict in your duty, by taking an oath to protect and preserve the land you have been charged with, is by not informing the public. I would like to thank all of you who had the courage to take the stand, by upholding the oath you took, to preserve, protect and defend Badlands National Park and all of the other national parks in our country! You chose Country First and you should be proud of your service. It is a honor and privilege for citizens of this country to have such loyal, committed, hardworking and talented people such as yourselves and I appreciate and applaud all of you. My message to the highest officials in the National Park Service and the President is: 1. There was absolutely no reason for not wanting the posted tweet as it was a fact and non-political 2. There should "Not" be any charges, warnings or restrictions of any kind to be placed upon any person who created the tweet 3. The tweeting practices of the national parks should not be shut down or restricted in any way due to this report of an actual fact that is occurring in our environment because that is a part of protecting our much beloved national parks 4. If the national parks are restricted in reporting this type of information, I believe the national parks service should seek legal council as the restrictions of this type of information not only violates their sworn duty not only to keep people informed and educated but also to preserve, protect and defend the lands granted, by law, to all of the American People who are entitled to know I feel that thank you is not enough for the service you provide but I want to thank you in any case! I am also so very sorry for all that you have endured as a result of only doing the job you were hired to do. Continue to have the courage to do what is right because there are probably more people than you know that support you! Best Regards, (b) (6) Irvine, CA 92618

To Whom It May Concern at Badlands National Park, My name is (b) (6). I am an outdoorsmen and environmental science major from southern California who loves nothing more than his time spent in the national parks. The outdoors has defined me as a young man. I live for my time spent outside, in peace, surrounded by the beauty our natural world has to offer. I never feel as alive as I do when pursuing my passions in the parks. I, along with all of the outdoors people in the United States, fear for the future of our lands in the hands of the current administration. I applaud and want to thank you for your act of retaliation to tyrant Trump's orders. Simple acts such as that provide hope to us all that we can fight back and keep our lands wild. In short, FUCK YEAH BADLANDS! Cheers, (b) (6)

I would just like to send an email of support to the employee who tweeted out scientific facts and urge the Badlands National Park to stand with this employee. Scientific facts should be widely circulated no matter the consequences (though there should be none). The american people can not stand for a gag order on scientists and researchers. I hope the Badlands National Park leads the way. As has been quoted time and time again lately "The good thing about science is that it's true whether or not you believe in it", Neil deGrasse Tyson nailed it. Climate change is very real. (b) (6)

I do not have a Twitter account but I saw that you have posted facts (not alternative facts) about the impact of climate change on our environment in the face of the new administration's order to not post these types of things. I want to thank you for doing your job. I have now put you on my list of TO VISIT parks when I do my cross country trip in a few years. Thanks once again.

As a former park ranger and a supporter of the parks, I have to say I wasn't surprised that the "culprit" was a former employee. Not the park superintendent or anyone else on staff. That would take courage and dedication to what the National Park System is supposed to be about: preserving and protecting. Thought someone out there had some guts but I guess those days are long gone.

Please stand by and respect your employee for issuing the truth. The world is a very sad place, indeed, when an agency has to apologize for uttering truth. That is Fascism. As patriots and Americans, you, I, all of us are required to stand for Truth and Justice. To do anything else would be detrimental to the Republic. Stand tall. Protect your employees and the environment, your only mission. Only you can make a difference. Thank you for all you do.

I heard the story on NPR tonight how you were tweeting factual information about the climate and our environment and now those tweets are deleted. I fear and suspect you've received threats and actively been censored by the US government. What a shame and please know that many citizens care and stand with you in your right to free (and truthful!) speech. (AND I will never forget my trip in 1999 to the Badlands!) Thank you.

Thank you for standing up to Donald trump's denial of climate science by tweeting the truth about climate change. They are FACTS I can use when talking to my senators and congressman regarding the urgency and importance of reducing our carbon emissions before we reach the "tipping point" of no return. Those of us who care about our environment, beautiful national parks, monuments, wildlife refuges, state natural areas, national and state forest lands will be relentless in making sure these national and state treasures will be protected. Let us know what we can do to help. On a happier note my family and I have visited Badlands National Park several times and every visit has been awesome! Thank you for your courage and for taking care of this national treasure.

Hello, I am writing to send my support of your tweets earlier today, all of which have since been deleted. I understand with the current administration, and the recent "issues" with the EPA, that you may feel as if you may be punished for such actions. I am honestly floored that I have to show such support for a national park to tweet FACTS, that "going rogue" is tweeting FACTS, but, here I am. I sincerely hope the person behind these tweets is given a promotion or at least support from coworkers to speak up. You are needed right now, you are appreciated, and you are supported. And thank you for doing the right thing by sharing scientific information, reminding citizens that this is part of the mission of OUR National Park System and how lucky we are to have this valuable structure and access to our natural history. We love learning the science of the Badlands area, this is part the amazing history of our country. I am alarmed and angered by the news today (and yes, I can discern real news from fake news) that scientists within the Natl Park Service, EPA and USDA have been gagged / banned from speaking publicly without prior consent. This is absurd and deeply worrisome. I will do everything I can to help you resist this ridiculous ban.

I thought of you when I saw the story about Badlands NP tweeting truth to power with facts about climate change. I want to say good for you, hope there is no serious retaliation... and I also wanted to say that we made a long camping road trip last summer--Badlands, Custer State Park, Devils Tower, Wind Cave, Yellowstone, Theodore Roosevelt NP--and Badlands just the best. It was the high point of the trip, I will remember it for the rest of my life, and so the news story brought back good memories. My best to you all, keep up all the good work.

Glad to see the parks services fighting the good fight so that people respect scientific evidence on issues that will affect our parks (and already are). Thank you for being brave and not falling in line with fascism or idiocy. I saw the Badlands NP when I was 7 and we were driving cross-country in my parents' van to California. It was wicked, and I'll never forget it. Cheers, (b) (6)

Dear Badlands National Parks office, I'd like to express my profuse thanks and support for the tweets that were put out in support of facts on climate change. Now more than ever we need strong voices that represent scientific reality and back up decades of research. Our future is at stake, as is the health of our country and planet. I urge Badlands and the National Park Service to be our land's stewards and use their platforms to resist dangerous anti-environmental policies. Please reconsider any need to apologize for supporting scientific fact, even if it contradicts a presidential platform. We need your bravery! Thank you, (b) (6)

You go, Badlands Nat'l Park! I've got your back, even if we don't have any power right now. We will fight with the power of FACTS! Mr. Trump & his team are waging an immediate war on knowledge on two separate fronts: active promotion of lies & active suppression of fact. We must resist.

America is proud of you! Its being called The Badlands NPS revolt of 2017! Everyone is passing it around. As far as I'm personally concerned I believe the National Park Service, the EPA and the USDA are funded with tax dollars. If that is the case I am a tax paying citizen and I want to hear what you guys have to say. I'm contacting my state legislators to see if there's a leg to stand on concerning this issue. I will call the ACLU as well. I feel like I should get something for my money, you know? America loves the bravery you showed today.

I want to thank you for your service in protecting this national park, for standing up for your rights, and for sharing important scientific information. Keep up the hard work, know that there are people listening, and please don't stop the good from being heard. I sincerely hope this message is well received and truly read because your words needed to be read and should not be silenced, it's science! Thank you for taking a stand, (b) (6)

Thank you for sending messages about climate change. Keep it up! Trump is wrong to try to silence the EPA and he shouldn't try to silence the Park Service. Republicans need to address the overwhelming importance of climate change. They could do a lot of damage if they keep hiding their heads in the sand. Mother Nature is not a Democrat!

I am part of a women's group that is trying to help those institutions that may be endangered at this time. I would like to know what I can do to support your park and all of the national parks. I volunteer locally at a state park and am well aware of Hatch Act laws, but I do not volunteer for the state, rather the "friends" of the park. Is there anything that I, as a citizen can do to help support our national parks, and the fight for our environment? Thank you for all you do. (b) (6)

Dear Badlands National Park, I want to thank you for sharing facts related to climate change and climate science, and for your tweets that highlighted climate change facts. I deeply appreciate your commitment to science, facts, and to the environmental issues facing our planet. I especially appreciate this commitment and practice of free speech, despite the current administration's attempts to limit the dissemination of facts such as climate change science. Our National Parks are incredible, irreplaceable treasures. The American people rely on our National Parks, and all those who work for our National Parks, to responsibly steward and protect these lands for future generations. Such a task will take courage and even further dedication in the days and years to come. Thank you for your service and your work!

Hi, As somebody who studies green chemistry and cares very much about the environment and climate change, I personally appreciate your as Buzzfeed says, "shade" being thrown via Twitter towards the uneducated, inbred presidential administration currently in charge. On the other hand, as somebody who studies green chemistry and cares very much about the environment, have you lost your damn minds? Your little tweets have captured national attention and most definitely pissed off the narcissistic oopma loompa meatloaf who has the power to essentially defund the NPS, climate change research, and basically any publicly funded scientific community trying to better the environment right now. Have you ever played Risk? (Yeah, the board game). You don't draw attention to yourself when somebody who is more powerful has the chance to destroy you. You most certainly don't passive aggressively "throw shade" at them either. You lay low, build your strength, and eventually--when you have the manpower and maybe a strong ally or two--make your move. You can't afford to be snarky on twitter right now. Did you see Sean Spicer hold a trial by fire for the media over a picture of how few people came to the inauguration? Did you see him spit out lie after lie in the name of trump? Did you notice that the Interior got a gag order for that same picture? This is 1984 type shit. I know you don't really care that some student is asking you not to piss off the president right now, but I'm begging you for the future of the public parks, environmental research, and you know, the earth-- please don't be smart asses right now. Be smart. Publicly, keep your heads down and don't give trump another reason to put his small sticky orange hands on your budget. Privately, build your resources--find Congressmen/women who care about the environment and believe in climate change (they exist, I promise), and get them on your side. Don't make The Orange One feel defensive, it attacks when it feels defensive. For the time being, don't need to draw attention to the inaccuracy of the alternative climate facts from the alternatively bred humans on the alternative right. If you do, by the time tony the tiger is impeached, there will be no national parks left to protect, just oil fields. Please. Just have your employees write letters to congressmen (the good ones) instead of tweeting right now. Call universities, scientists, and environmentalists. Gather research and leak it to the media. Start a campaign for donations so that if your budget is axed, it won't be detrimental. Obviously the NPS, EPA, and anything that has to do with a better world is under fire from trump right now, so I'm asking that you just be productive instead of snarky right now.

I appreciated your tweets today about climate change and our responsibility to care for our planet and our environment. I'm not sure why they were deleted, but if it has to do with some kind of order from the executive branch, I hope you know that many people are proud of what you did and your story is spreading. Facts and science matter!

To Whom It May Concern: My name is (b) (6) and I am a doctoral student at the University of California. I wanted to write a note to express my respect for and solidarity with whomever at Badlands National Park tweeted the basic facts of climate change this morning. Our public institutions, including the National Park Service, are the primary line of defense against the misinformation of this presidential administration, and the work that you do is so important and so valued. I see that the messages have now been removed, but I hope that whomever was responsible will not be reprimanded– this is all of our jobs now. Very best–

A quick note to THANK YOU for your courageous demonstration of service and duty in defying Trump's gag order and instead sending the tweets today about critical climate change data and consequences. We all need to do our parts to resist his denial of science and oppressive regime tactics. Growing up, I had the tremendous fortune of visiting Grand Canyon, Bryce, Zion, Kings Canyon, Acadia and the Redwoods; and over the last two years have taken my own children to Sequoia and Yellowstone. These Parks are beyond precious and on behalf of my family, we wish you continued fortitude over the next 4 years. We are all going to need it. THANK YOU SO VERY MUCH!!! Hello Badlands National Park, I'm hoping to learn a bit more about these tweets that are being spread around social media. I understand that climate change is a touchy subject today and I'd like to know what's going on with the posts on Badlands National Park's Twitter account? Has there been a recent change of policy regarding posts the NPS can make on social media? Any language in the policy about climate and climate change specifically? Do the four most recent tweets on the official Badlands park page go against the policy? Or are they permissible under NPS social media rules? Any and all other information regarding the tweets would be very much appreciated! Thank you! Best, Hannah Weikel (b) (6)

Hello, I am a science writer with PBS Newshour and I'm writing a short article on climate change and Trump's contention with scientists. I saw the Badlands National Park Twitter feed had some tweets about climate change on it, and it got the newsroom wondering if the agency had a particular reason for focusing on climate change right now. And if there is any concern about the Trump administration locking down more science agencies because they post about science. Would anyone at NPS be available for a short phone interview? Thank you for your time, Kristin Hugo PBS Newshour

Just wanted to give a huge thanks to the National Park Service, and Badlands, for the honesty on Twitter the last few days. I know you'll face heat from the new administration, but I appreciate seeing the Park Service stand up for what is best for the Parks, and for all of us. As someone who lives near the Badlands in South Dakota, I'm especially proud of our local park's role. I just wish our new leaders valued the Parks the way regular visitors do. Best of luck, and thank you again!

Hi there! I'm a journalist for The Verge and was wondering if someone would be available (preferably the social media manager for the Badlands NPS), to talk about the climate change-related tweets sent from the account today. We're very curious about how government agencies and scientists are responding to gag orders from the new President and what they're doing to defend climate science in this new era of science denying. Thanks! Kaitlyn Tiffany

In Hawai'i snails sing. While the source of this voice has been debated for years, Hawaiian folklore suggests the snails themselves were the source of sound. Consequently, in Hawaiian custom, snails were the voice of the forest, and they embodied the Polynesian oral tradition of passing on one's genealogy through chant.

Because of introduced predators, habitat alteration and historical over-collection, many of Hawai'i's terrestrial snails are quickly approaching extinction. The Hawai'i Snail Extinction Prevention Program is bringing species back from the brink with focused predator control, captive rearing and habitat protection. www.dlnr.hawaii.gov/sepp

ʻĀhinahina (Haleakalā silversword)

Argyroxiphium sandwicense ssp. macrocephalum - endangered
Icon of the summit of Haleakalā, ʻāhinahina grows only at 7,000 to 10,000 feet above the reach of the cloud layer. Flowering season is May to September, and once the plant flowers it dies, dries, and summit winds disperse the tiny seeds. The species has steadily recovered through nearly 100 years of protection in the park.

LAKE MARY

The largest in the chain of lakes that makes up the Mammoth Lakes Basin, Lake Mary offers spectacular scenery and great fishing. Some believe that Lake Mary was named for Mary Calvert, a Pine City pioneer during the gold rush. Others state the lake was named for a Bodie dance hall girl.

Dear Badlands National Park,

Thank you. I understand you usually tweet often about climate change, bringing facts to those who may be unaware. Thank you for this. I pray deep down that your tweets posted this week were deleted for a reason other than the Iran on outside media communications our new "president" enacted. But I'd like to think I'm not that naive. Please keep doing what you're doing and bringing FACTS to our nation and the world regarding the very real climate change occurring and the pace at which it is occurring. I've always wanted to travel the states and your park has just become my next destination. Keep us informed.

Thank you,

(b) (6)

Dear Superintendent -

I'm writing in support of the factual, science-based tweets about climate change coming from the Badlands National Park, in defiance of President Trump's gag order. The only way our planet is going to avoid irreparable damage in the next four years is for us all to engage in acts of civil disobedience.

I heard it was an ex-employee who hacked your Twitter accounts. I sincerely hope not! If that's what your official line has to be in order to protect current employees, I totally understand. Do whatever you need to protect our National Parks.

I am a teacher and science is important to me. Facts are important to me. We do not espouse a particular political stance at our school but we do teach science & critical thinking as well as respect for all beings and the planet. Once every three years we come & camp at the Badlands on our way to SW Colorado. We love it.

Please know that I think this "ex-employee" should keep it up. This is what resistance looks like. Factual tweets from the NPS is brilliant and I totally support them.

Sincerely,

RE: Tweeting as to global warming

Dear Sir or Madam:

You folks ROCK.

Thank you for your Tweets regarding global warming on January 24, 2017. I wish that I could do something to prevent the current President from restricting your ability to present facts to the world via social media. Please take comfort in the knowledge that a large portion of America is pleased with your actions and will support you to the extent that we can.

Thank you and please, feel free to send me recommendations as to what actions me and my friends can take to get the message out regarding global warming and the preservation of America's park lands.

Very truly yours,

Thank you for standing up for what is right. Ripping off the duct tape of oppression and saying what needs to be heard. Your bravery is of something that is to be desired especially now in these particular times.

Change will have consequences and I'm sure you know that. I don't know if you can be shoved into the streets by his administration, but if it happens I'm sure a lawsuit will come forth.

Still, thank you for what you've done.

To Whom It May Concern:

Enclosed you will find a donation check for the Badlands National Park. I ask that you please use it for any scientific endeavor that supports the park and its mission. I wholeheartedly support the National Park System and the work that it does to protect and enhance some of our most beautiful natural spaces and to educate the public about them.

I am donating today as a direct result of seeing climate science facts posted on your Twitter account. I understand from news reports that these posts were made by a person not currently employed by the Park Service and that they were taken down rather quickly in order to follow an executive order. However, for the brief time that they were visible, they provided a source of encouragement to those of us who believe that sticking your head in the sand will not make climate change go away. I would like to thank you for that and to remind any of your employees who may be feeling disheartened that there are many people like me who value the work that you do.

Sincerely,

To Whom It May Concern,

As a concerned citizen who wants the truth to be told, I deeply appreciate your park taking a stand by Tweeting accurate climate change information. While the ignorant Trump administration may have legal authority to direct your communications – these are extraordinary times. They call for each of us, as Americans, parents, brothers, sisters, and citizens of the world, to look beyond the normal rules to challenge the dangerous regime that has been put in place in our White House.

If there is anything I can do to support your efforts to speak the truth about climate change, please do not hesitate to contact me. I live in New York, but I am a former visitor to your park, and have greatly enjoyed its wonders.

Thank you.

Dear Friends:

I don't know who will read this letter, but I hope that it is someone responsible for the brave tweets that went out in protest of the new administration's gag order regarding climate change. I regard your principled disobedience as one of the essential acts of protest in the first week of our new president's ascension.

In my view, it is critical that career professionals working at a high level of professionalism be free to pursue the dictates of science, conscience, and good sense. I am deeply grateful that you decided to put truth before the new version of political correctness that has descended like a cloud since the inauguration.

Please know that you have support all over the country and that my own admiration is deep and real. Thank you.

Independence Hall is the most famous building in Philadelphia, and the scene of some of the most important events in American History. Patriots met in the Hall in May 1775, in the Second Continental Congress to choose George Washington as commander in chief of the Continental Army. John Hancock signed the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776 and the Liberty Bell proclaimed the news on July 8 from the Hall's bell tower.

THANK YOU! The bravery you demonstrated in tweeting truth (science) to power (white House) is more important than ever. Our world is a rich resource, and deserves our respect and care. I'm proud to live in the Midwest and call Badlands one of my nearest National Parks. I promise to support financially w/ annual memberships and with my voice the NPS, BLM, USFS, and my local state and county parks. They are a treasure we as citizens are fortunate to hold, and I thank you for your civic and advocacy for our earth. Sincerely (b) (6)

Dear NPS Staffers,

What strange times we are living in!
Last week's gag orders and Twitter rebellion surely caught the attention of the world. While it may not have been anyone on staff that was directly involved, I'm sure your team has been feeling /dealing with the response on all sorts of levels.

I do informal science education work in Portland, Oregon and my colleagues and I are in agreement that

BRAVO on Tweets! Support the science; don't be gagged. We need you.
