Six U.S. Banks Finance More than $700 Billion in Fossil Fuel Industries From 2016 to 2018

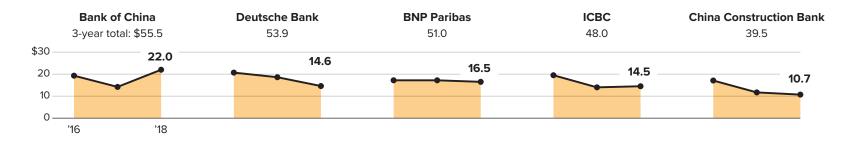

In the three years since the Paris Agreement was adopted, banks have lent nearly $1.9 trillion to fossil fuel industries from 2016 to 2018, according to a collaborative report by six non-governmental organizations. U.S. commercial and investment banks are the top financiers of fossil fuel industries by a wide margin.
